

Category: Table

Type: Receptacle object

Room located: living room

Surrounding objects:

hook rack, bench, door Supporting objects:

books, candles, potted plant, shoes

Geometry & Position: The receptacle in the image is a long, horizontal console table placed against a wall near the entrance of the house. It is positioned directly across from the front door, making it one of the first pieces of furniture visible upon entry. Relationships: This receptacle serves as a practical surface near the entryway, supporting various shoes which indicates its use as a shoe rack. Positioned directly beneath a coat hanging area, it integrates functionality for storing outdoor wear conveniently. Functionality in Scene: Considering its position near the door and its storage capabilities, this table is optimally used as a dropzone for shoes and possibly other outdoor accessories. Likely interactions include placing and retrieving shoes when entering or leaving the home, making it a key organizational point in the house.

Fine-grained category: "Entryway Organizing Console"